FCA Short Course Explained System

Delegates Learned More About Operating Farm Unit

The sectional short course of the Farm Credit Administration held at West Texas State Teachers College, September 6 and 7 was a great success, according to G. G. Foster, local agent for the National Farm Loan Association.

Those attending had an opportunity to learn more of the operation of the various units of this large financing system for agriculture that has helped thousands of Texas farmers and ranchers carry on through the period of emergency.

Among the principal speakers at the meeting were A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land Bank of Houston and General Agent of the Farm Credit Administration of Houston, who spoke on the work of the Federal Land Bank in making loans on its own behalf and as Agent for the Land Bank Commissioner.

Virgil P. Lee, vice-president of the Production Credit Corporation of Houston, told how production credit loans are made at a low rate of interest through Production Credit Associations to aid farmers and stockmen in the production of crops and livestock. T. P. Priddie, Jr., vice-president and treasurer of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, outlined the functions of the Intermediate Credit Bank, which discounts the notes of farmers and stockmen on loans made by various eligible lending agencies. Jno. B. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Houston Bank of Cooperatives, spoke on the various types of loans made to farmers cooperative associations in Texas.

Another interesting feature of the short course was a practical demonstration of farm land appraisal by land bank appraisers, conducted by P. W. Chunn, chief appraiser of the Federal Land Bank, and O. E. May, reviewing appraiser of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C.

H. H. Finnell, regional director of the Soil Conservation Service, Dalhart, spoke on terracing to conserve moisture or to prevent damage to the soil from wind erosion.

A. P. Graves, agent for the Land Bank Commissioner of Houston, talked on the purposes for which loans could be made and the importance of accurate information contained in the applications sent in.

W. T. REGISTRATION BEGINS SEPT. 17TH

Enrollment In Canyon School Placed at 500

Curriculum Revision Will Be Work of Paramount Interest This Year, Says Carruth

Approximately 500 students are enrolled in the Canyon Public School this year, announced Supt. Irby Carruth yesterday. This places the enrollment on a par in numbers with that of last year. Students are still enrolling and official figures will not be available until early next week.

"Our faculty, one of the best balanced staffs we have had in years, is eager to start the curriculum program which was planned last year," said Supt. Carruth. This program will mean putting into effect new objectives in many courses, new activities, and subject matter, and the employing of new methods of approach.

"We are looking forward to one of the busiest years in our history," added the superintendent. "We have added a new course, bookkeeping, with the equipment necessary for such work, and are planning to have our curriculum completely revised during the year.'

Four new faculty members have been added to the staff, replacing members of last year's faculty who did not return. New members are Miss Virginia Jarrett, Miss Edith Shields, Gerald Brown, and R. G. Stevenson.

Harold Shanklin Named Foreman In Conservation Work

J. Harold Shanklin has been named senior non-technical foreman for the U. S. Soil Conservation service program which is to get under way in Potter county within a very short time.

Mr. Shanklin and eight other members of the administrative staff have reported and are ready for work.

Work Started On Tables and Fire Places in Park

Work on one hundred temporary wooden picnic tables and fifty reinforced concrete fire places was begun Monday in the picnic units in the Palo Duro State Park, announces Louis J. Bryan, superintendent.

Two additional camp ground developments have been approved and work will be begun on them within a short time. Construction has already begun on several wooden latrines for the camp grounds.

Crossing No. 1 has been repaired since the rains of last week and is open for traffic. Application has been made for high water bridges over the crossings on this creek so that motor traffic will not be stopped during rains and rising waters.

This work that is being done on the park will add greatly to the picnic facilities of the recreational center and will greatly increase the camping facilities of the playground.

Randall Will Be Represented at Tri-State Fair

Individuals To Show Products Separately Rather Than In County Exhibit

A variety of exhibits from Randall County agriculturalists and live stock owners will be on display at the Tri-State Fair when it opens in Amarillo Saturday.

No county exhibit as such is being prepared by the County; however, there will be a large number of products shown by individual exhibitors and a representative display is expected.

The fair will continue one week, ending Saturday, Sept. 21.

From every standpoint, fair association officials predict, this year's exposition will be the most interesting, instructive and intriquing ever held in the Southwest. With no state fair this year at Dallas, it will be the largest.

All exhibits with the possible exception of a few livestock herds from distant states, will be in place when the fair opens.

"Every effort will be made to have the exposition as complete on the opening day as on the closing day," said Wilbur C. Hawk, president, who predicts more and better entries and a larger attendance than during any of the 12 previous years.

In addition to thrilling races every day, there will be other major attractions.

Mrs. F. Fulton To Teach Physical Education Here

Mrs. Florence Fulton, a native of Alabama, and a graduate of S. M. U. and the North Texas State Teachers College will be a member of the College physical education department this year, taking the place of Mrs. Wallace O'Keefe. Mrs. O'Keefe has been granted a leave-of-absence to do further study.

Coming to Canyon after work in colleges in Arkansas and in the East Texas State Teachers College, Mrs. Fulton is highly recommended.

She possesses both B. S. and B. A. degrees, with her major interests in the fields of social sciences, biology and physical education. Her M. A. degree was earned at S M. U., with physical education and chemistry as her fields of work.

Miss Ruth Cross is head of the department of physical education for women. At present she is vacationing in New Mexico.

Miss Louise Upchurch will leave Sunday for Albuquerque where she will enter the University of New Mexico for the winter.

High Enrollment Is Anticipated

Campus Buildings Have Been Repaired for Opening

The West Texas State Teachers College will open September 17, with prospects of the largest attendance in its history. The girls' dormitories are practically full, and those for young men are rapidly filling.

During the vacation all the buildings on the campus are being made shipshape for the long session. College administrative officers are in their offices and are being kept busy each day answering inquiries concerning courses, living places and expenses.

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the college states that three classes of students will receive special attention this year. Young people of junior college rank will find work which will be preparatory to all kinds of professional study. The senior college students will continue their general courses or receive intensive preparation for teaching. The third group will be the graduate students who will be preparing themselves to do expert work in the public schools of Texas.

New Courses Are Added

Among the new courses which will be offered in the 1935-36 session is Community Recreation, designed to fit young people to organize and direct both summer and winter recreation programs for people of all ages. This course is demanded because of the shorter working day and week of the modern world.

Texas history will be emphasized in connection with the general interest created by the Texas Centennial.

The department of geography will have a course called Historical Geography, which deals with the influence of geographical conditions upon history. This course will be taught by Professor Darthula Walker who is a member of the Texas State Curriculum Committee and author of the Texas Supplement to the geography used in the public schools of the state.

Practically every one of the twenty departments of the college will offer some courses which has not been given before. This does not mean that a great number of courses have been added, but that courses are being changed to suit needs and interests, according to the course committee which is headed by Dean R. P. Jarrett.

WPA Refuses To Grant Hospital For City-County

The city-county hospital proposed for Canyon and Randall County has been turned down by the Works Progress Administration, according to a telegram received Tuesday from that organization.

The refusal was based upon the shortage of work hours in this county, and stated there are not enough men available for the number of projects submitted to justify building a hospital here thru the aid of WPA.

Mayor C. R. Burrow and the city and county commissioners met Tuesday morning and discussed the action of the WPA. It was decided that no further application would be made.

The original request was for a $50,000 hospital building to be operated jointly by the city and county.

The dry forces in Texas have not quit work even though the State went wet by an overwhelming majority in the recent election.

The Wichita County Woman's Good Government League is sending out petitions to be signed by citizens of the community, asking the Legislature, which convenes September 16, to enact legislation for the control and sale of intoxicating liquor according to 12 points set out in the petition as:

Preventing the return of the open saloon; prevent intoxicating liquor being sold by the drink; prevent liquor being sold to minors or students in schools or colleges; prohibit, under severe penalties, drinking on the premises where intoxicating liquor is sold; prevent intoxicating liquor being sold except in sealed packages; prevent liquor being carried on any common carrier or automobile except in sealed packages with the seal unbroken thereon; enact a law providing a jail penalty, in addition to fine, for driving while intoxicated; a law making it a jail penalty, in addition to a fine, to bring intoxicating liquor into local option territory; a law providing that liquor may be sold only by officers of State or county Government, and providing that all profits from the sale shall go into the State Treasury; placing a State Tax on each package of liquor sold; a law strengthening the powers of law enforcement officers and the judiciary to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquor by injunction in local option territory, in addition to placing adequate fines and penalties therefor; and last, enact a law providing for confiscation and sale of all intoxicating liquor found within local option territory, in any vehicle or upon any premises where same is found, similar to the Federal Law for contraband liquor now in force.

Without a doubt much pressure will be brought to bear upon the legislators at their next session and the above issues are certainly worthy of consideration.

After the high pace set by Chicago with its Century of Progress Exposition, the western coast has turned its mind upon World Fairs in a big way. San Diego, with its International Exposition is enjoying the business of entertaining thousands and thousands of people every day.

In 1939 Los Angeles and San Francisco intend to outdo what has been done and have twin World Fairs. Los Angeles wishes to show off with the importance of Boulder Dam and the Colorado River Aqueduct to say nothing of her climate, which really is great that can be compared second to none.

San Francisco is working day and night making ready for its 1939 show place, which will mark the completion of its two largest bridges in the world—the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and the Golden Gate Bridge, both of which the writer has had the pleasure of seeing only recently.

Two world fairs in one state during the same year is something never before thought about, but California with all of its many resources, should be able to get the job done.

TRAVEL AND RECOVERY

From the Washington Post: The Department of commerce reports that the travel business during recent weeks has reached proportions comparable to 1928-30 records. New York is busy with a volume of Trans-Atlantic and railroad traffic unequaled for years. Travel offices in Chicago have booked 80 per cent more business than last season. From the west coast comes reports of substantial gains in automobile and railroad travel and better than a 25 per cent increase in inbound, non resident motoring. It is a sign of recovery. For travel demands money and, more significantly, a confidence in the present and at least immediate future.

In addition to suggesting the advent of better times, the upswing promises a more healthy state of mind. The dust from the proverbial grindstone may become blinding, choking stuff. For a man to get clear of it occasionally not only renews his vigor but also broadens his vision. An eminent financier pays a large sum for the services of an expert, but under no conditions is he expected to work more than ten months out of the year. To work him longer, says his financier, would be to lower his net output. The theory, of course, is not new. But the call of woods, of the sea and the open road is all too seldom obeyed, particularly in these highly geared times.

Bernard Shaw once wrote that a perpetual holiday is a good working definition of hell. The other side of the argument is that perpetual hell is working without a good holiday. The deck-chair, the mountain lake, the seaside beach are all pendulum governors of life without which few hard working human machines can function efficiently for any length of time. That these are now being more widely patronized presages a recovery of a more lasting and promising sort than the most favorable comparisons of travel expenditures alone could indicate.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

In about a month, Fire Prevention Week will be observed again. Starting on October 6, the week will run through the 12th.

The week is usually inaugurated by Presidential proclamation. Governors of states and mayors of cities follow suit. Fire marshals, fire departments, insurance organizations and other public and private groups co-operate in seeking to spread the ABC's of fire prevention and control to the general public—which has most at stake, and which must accept the responsibility for almost every fire, large or small, that occurs.

During the week every citizen will have a chance to learn, easily, thoroughly and "painlessly," the simple lessons that will enable him to keep his home and other property safe from fire. He will be told of the manace of old and improperly-done wiring. He will learn the need for periodic inspections of his heating plant—one of the most prolific sources of fire. He will be shown the vital necessity of fire-resistant building, and of modern municipal building codes. He will hear of the tragic school, hospital and other major fires which have destroyed thousands of lives, and property valued at millions, which were absolutely unnecessary.

To learn this, the citizen will have to contribute a little of his time. He will have to look at exhibits, read editorials, news reports and pamphlets. He will have to listen to a radio address or two. He will have to keep his mind open, and his memory awake—a lesson that is not retained is obviously useless.

In return for this small expenditure of time, he will receive knowledge that may be the means of saving his property from destruction and his loved ones from violent and horrible deaths. Is it worth it to you?

A "HIDDEN" CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

The more traffic experts study the accident toll, the more they become convinced there is an important "hidden" cause of many automobile accidents. This lurking agent of death and injury is carbon monoxide poisoning.

Carbon monoxide gas develops when any fuel—coal, wood, gasoline, or illuminating gas—does not burn properly or completely. It cannot be seen, smelled or tasted. Its only warnings are headache and drowsiness. Yet it is in the air wherever there is motor traffic. The exhaust of a car, even one in good running condition, contains a concentration of fifteen per cent of it. As little as two per cent in the air will poison, and four per cent will kill.

Statistics show, according to the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, that carbon monoxide from auto exhaust gasses is the direct cause of at least 700 deaths annually. No one knows nor can guess how many lives are lost indirectly through its influence. For example, there is no telling how often that common driving occurrence "sleep at the wheel," has been induced by carbon monoxide.

All motorists are familiar with the headache and lassitude which often come upon them while driving. These signs, coupled with the odors of exhause fumes in a moving vehicle are final warnings that carbon monoxide is present in lethal quantities. They should be more than sufficient notice to take the necessary measures abainst carbon monoxide poisoning. This means regular checking of the exhaust mechanism and the carburetor action, keeping the vehicle well ventilated when driving, eliminating any leaks or holes which allow seepage from the motor or exhause to the body of the car.

Householders should also consider that carbon monoxide poisoning is a possibility whenever fuel is burned in the home. Coal, gas, stove, furnace and oil burner companies can give advice on precautions that will afford safety from this invisible death.

Pension Plan Brings Them Fame

Not long ago Dr. F. E. Townsend of Long Beach, Calif., was an obscure, hard-working country doctor, aided in his healing work by his wife, the nurse he won in a Black Hills mining town years ago. Now the physician is a national figure as author of the popular Old Age Revolving Pension Plan. His modest, self-effacing wife is shown above in one of her few pictures with her now-famous husband.

. . . and the best way to get a more pleasing flavor and a better taste in a cigarette is by welding together the different types of tobacco . . .
That is just what we do in making CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes—the three types of mild ripe home-grown tobaccos, that is tobaccos grown in this country, are welded together. Then they are welded with aromatic Turkish.
When these tobaccos are welded together you get a combined flavor which is entirely different from any one type of tobacco.

Antonio Cordero, as Governor, Cut Red Tape

Austin.—In the summer of 1805 something quite unprecedented happened in Texas—a man with initiative, with constructive ideas, assumed office in Texas. This courageous soul—and it took courage to cut the governmental red tape imposed from above by the king and viceroy and commandant general—was Colonel Antonio Cordero. The great idea he worked out, at a period when initiative in local officials was positively an unknown quantity, was that of building a buffer on the Texas-Louisiana frontier with the Americans who were pushing so steadily and so irresistably westward. He was thoroughly convinced that these men were dissatisfied with the governmental policies of the United States, that they felt a real affection for the Spanish system and would, therefore, stand firmly against the aggressions of the American troops that were being massed on the border. He believed they would be able to prevent depredations by both native and immigrant Indian tribes at the same time, and would help to develop the border province for which he was responsible. His plans were even more far-reaching than this, for he likewise hoped to bring into Texas Spaniards from beyond the Rio Grande as a means of developing a nationalistic spirit thus insuring the safety of this province, "the Key to the Dominion of Mexico."

Cordero's initiative brought into hearing three settlements hitherto practically unknown to historians, a series of towns scattered along the Camino Real from Nacogdoches to the Presidio of San Juan Bautisto. From documents being translated from the Bexar Archives in the library of the University of Texas, the history of these unique settlements—Trinidad de Salcedo on the Trinity, San Marcos de Neva Jaen on the Frio—life on this exposed frontier can be recreated.

Villa de Santissima Trinidad de Salcedo was founded in 1805 by a handful of Spaniards from Bexar and Nacogdoches and a number of Frenchmen, Irishmen, Italians and Americans from Louisiana. To assimilate these settlers would have been a herculean task even if the border settlements—indeed any of the settlements—had contained men equal in vision to Cordero. Life was crude and morality at a low ebb as can be seen from the police regulations drawn up by the commandant at Nacogdoches, March 6, 1807:

"I have noticed that in a town even so small as this one there is an increasing number of vagrants who spend their time only in complaining and in getting drunk. In census reports they call themselves farmers. It is very seldom, however, that because of the ease with which they can reach a foreign country, the theft of animals is of daily occurrence. As a result, poverty and scarcity prevail in this town at the present time to such an extent that even the government has exhausted all of its resources in trying to maintain the troops that have been kept there. It has been difficult to do this because of delays due to bad roads and swollen rivers which delay the crossing of the stock. Seeing then, that the troops here cannot perform their duties much longer because of lack of horses and that perhaps the cavalry will have to remount with the horses which had been let loose to rest, I command all the owners of small farms and lots and all persons owning lands to begin to cultivate them at once. I also require them to report to me such pieces of lands as they may have and what they have planted on them. Whoever violates this order by leaving his land uncultivated shall suffer the penalty of losing the rights he has thereto and the possession thereof shall be given to his neighbor, who may be more frugal and industrious."

"If a farmer is in need of a laborer to help him in his work, and finds one of those vagrants who owes him anything, he may ask the judge to oblige said person to pay it in work.

"The vagrants shall be continuously prosecuted by the attorney or by the assistant prosecutors. If they are found in gambling places or in saloons on work days, they shall be sent to the guard house for fifteen days to work on the roads and fences or to clean along the river. After this they shall be turned over to the honorable and industrious residents who will compel them to work.

"It has been noticed also how readily these foreign vagrants and Spaniards—even when they do not have passports—have been permitted to live on the farms; also how they conceal their stolen stock there and even the guilty persons hide themselves.

"I, therefore, command whoever may be sent out to inspect the farms situated some distances from the highway and finds anyone who has no permit from me to take him prisoner, in order to impose upon him the penalty of 15 days' imprisonment and hard work on roads. If the one who thus arrives at the farm shall have brought contraband goods or stolen stock, he shall be punished with penalties prescribed, as well as the owner of the farm shall also be punished as an accomplice and abetter of the crime.

"Owners of farms situated on the highway, where the lodging is at times given to passers by, shall receive no one without a passport; and even when they present one, it will be extended only for the time necessary. If it is noticed that even any one who has a passport is a suspicious character or is bringing in merchandise or horses, they shall arrest him, and attach his belongings. If they cannot do this, they must notify me. Failure to do this will make them amendable to punishment for the crime of abetting the contraband trade.

"In order that this notice shall come to the knowledge of everybody, I hereby publish it as a proclamation in the plaza of this town on this day, Sunday after mass, where all the people congregate. In addition to the copy posted in the plaza, according to custom, one shall be made and sent from farm to farm. The owners will sign it and thus acknowledge that they have been informed of its contents and cannot allege ignorance of its contents."

Austin's Speech Repeated Sunday at Brazoria, Tex.

Dallas.—The ringing words of Steven F Austin at Brazoria, which a hundred years ago stirred Texans to strike for liberty, were repeated Sunday to a listening Southwest.

This famous speech of Austin, delivered on his return from two years imprisonment in Mexico, was broadcast over a network of Southwestern radio stations Sunday afternoon, the anniversary of its initial utterance, September 8, 1935.

The ceremonial held at Brazoria was the first historical observance of the Texas Centennial which will be climaxed by the great central Exposition in Dallas which opens June 6.

Austin's speech a hundred years ago was heard only by a group of a few hundred settlers. It took weeks for his patriotic message to spread throughout Texas. Sunday a million people in the Southwest heard it simultaneously.

Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul, chairman of the State Centennial Commission of Control, was master of ceremonies and spoke from Brazoria. Descendants of Moses Austin, father of Stephen F. Austin, also greeted the Southwest on the eve of Texas' great anniversary.

Austin's toast, "The Constitutional rights, security and Peace of Texas,—they must be maintained," the keynote of his speech, was repeated Sunday.

"September is a more or less routine month. Starting to school, music lessons are resumed again for the fall and winter. We will always have washing and ironing and three meals a day routine. Cooking by no means need be a routine job. As a matter of fact, it need not be termed a routine job but rather an accomplishment which can be made very interesting if it is looked upon in the right frame of mind.

"The first item to consider in planning a meal is to include the food elements that have been lacking during the day (I am speaking of the evening meal, because that is when the family is generally together, and it is usually the main meal). The second is to prepare food in some way a little different from what you have been used to doing. Third, serve it as attractively as possible, remembering the old saying, 'Feed the stomach first through the eyes'."

And let us suggest that you look further into how simplified your problems will become when cooking electrically with a Waldorf. Its performance is unexcelled and it costs no more than other forms of cooking . . . in many cases, less.

NEW CHART TESTS LIGHT

A novel and interesting chart has been brought out by a well known maker of home reading lamps. The purpose of the new chart, which is called the Coleman VISIONSCOPE, is to enable anyone in their home to find out whether the lamp they are using gives enough light for reading, sewing or other close work without harming the vision.

It is a fact that in many homes the lamps used during the dark hours give so little light that those using them are in grave danger of eye strain and even permanent injury to their eyes.

Because the human eye can stand a great amount of abuse, without pain or marked discomfort, many people are not aware of this danger until much harm may have been done.

Children's Vision in Danger

The eyes of children and young people are particularly sensitive. No parent would willingly send children out into life with the handicap of poor eyesight. Yet this is happening every day in homes where the parents do not know that the light used for studying is too dim for safe seeing.

One of these new Coleman VISIONSCOPES will be given free to anyone who asks for it by Thompson Hardware Co., who handles these new Coleman Lamps. Stop in soon and get one and find out if the lamp light in your home is sufficiently strong for studying, reading, sewing, etc., without harming eyesight.

Lynne J. Bevan of Montclair, New Jersey, was in Canyon this week looking after his real estate interests in the south part of the county.

"Old Shovel-Jaw" Is Mounted in Museum

Only Portions of Huge Mastodon Now Remain

A shovel-jawed Mastodon which roamed the swamps and along the rivers which flowed in the Panhandle of Texas five million years ago now fires the imagination of visitors to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum. Only the immense jaw of the animal remains.

There were many Shovel-Jaws in those far off days, according to J. Stuart Johnston, paleontologist of the West Texas State Teachers College, who prepared the jaw for exhibition. Boy Scouts of Amarillo located the jaw in a pit near their city and then assisted in excavating it.

This Mastodon, like others of the Pliocene age in which he lived, was about the size of a present-day elephant. He was a vegetarian and his long jaw was used to shovel his food from the surface of the ground. Like elephants of today, he had only two lower and two upper teeth at a time. These teeth which show in the jaw are about ten inches by four inches. It is likely that when one set wore out they were pushed out of the jaw and replaced by new ones. It is unlikely that old Shovel-Jaw ever had to visit a pre-historic dentist when he needed new teeth. This was a good thing, for he lived a long time before man is supposed to have appeared on the earth.

Many Fossils in Museum

Fossils of many other animals which lived in the early ages of the earth are found in the museum. Miss Iris Gillis of Pampa, a college student who is interested in paleontology and geology, was recently photographed with the leg bones and skull of a rhinoceros. These bones were found in Hemphill county not far from Canadian.

In this grave yard of big animals Wayne Miles of Dalhart, another college student, unearthed the bones of this semi-aquatic rhinoceros which lived by browsing on soft lush vegetation.

Professor Johnston says that the museum has now collected enough bones of this animal to make a complete specimen. When it is ready to exhibit it will take its place beside a fossil camel, another animal of the great Plains region which lived, however, in the Miocene Age, some ten million years ago. The camel is about the size of a goat.

One of the largest fossil bones in the collection is the upper front leg bone of the Imperial Elephant. This elephant was one of the largest that ever lived, some specimens of the family reaching a height of approximately fifteen feet and weighing several tons. The short leg bone of this animal is more than 40 inches long.

Perhaps the snout of the mastodon and the nose of the rhino were sometimes seized by immense turtles which lived in those days, for the shell of it which must have weighed at least 450 pounds is exhibited. This fossilized shell is 30 inches long. It was found near Clarendon, and was prepared for exhibition by Professor Johnston and Harry Hartzog, a student paleontologist of Clarendon.

Other interesting fossil exhibits include that of a pre-historic dog about the size of today's police dog, bones of a sabre-toothed tiger and fossil tracks of another huge tiger which were found in rocks near the camp of the excavating party in Hemphill county.

Fossils Bring Visitors

The fossil collection of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum is attracting attention of paleontologists all over the United States. During the last few months Dr. R. A. Stirton of the Museum of Paleontology of California University spent two days studying here, Dr. T. E. White and Dr. L. I. Price, research assistants for the Harvard Museum of Comparative Zoology, studied specimens in the museum and in Palo Duro State Park. Professor J. W. Stovall of Oklahoma University Museum of Paleontology and Dr. E. W. Sellards of the geology department of the University of Texas and Dr. E. C. Olsen of the University of Chicago are among those who are interested in the Panhandle field as shown in the local museum.

Frequently the bone hunters find several fossils of a given kind. When this happens the bones are exchanged with other museums for specimens not found in this territory. In this way institutions secure valuable material at only a small cost.

Some of the fossils which have been found during the summer in Palo Duro State Park and in the pits of Hemphill, Potter, Donley, and Randall counties will be prepared for exhibition, and many others will be used during the coming nine months as laboratory materials for classes in the West Texas State Teachers College. Students of paleontology not only secure an understanding of life on earth from its earliest beginning to the present time, but also learn how to find and excavate and how to classify fossil animals and plants. Field trips are a regular part of such classes.

Weatherford Man Donates Document To Plains Museum

Jack Browning of Weatherford has donated to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society Museum an interesting document, a commission that his father, William T. Browning, received from the governor of Arkansas on his appointment to surveyor in that state in the year 1848.

The paper, now yellowed with age, has been framed and solemnly attests in faded ink that one William F. Browning, has been duly elected surveyor in and for the County of Clark in the State of Arkansas at a General Election held in said county on the first Monday in August, 1848.

It closes with the paragraph, "In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the Seal of the State of Arkansas to be affixed, at Little Rock, this 24th day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight and of the Independence of the United States the seventy-third year." It is signed by Thos. S. Drew, governor, and D. B. Green, secretary of state.

In taking the oath of office Mr. Browning swore that he would do the work of surveyor to the best of his ability, "and that I have not been either directly nor indirectly engaged in any manner in any duel, or given, or been the bearer of any challenge to fight a duel in this state since the first day of January." The paper will be placed in Pioneer Hall.

Jack Browning, aged 90, attended the Confederate reunion in Amarillo last week. He served three years in the Civil War under Brig.-Gen. Campbell. He is a brother of the late Judge J. N. Browning of Amarillo.

Dr. F. Fronabarger Talks About Boys' Work At Rotary

Dr. Ford Fronabarger of the College English Department spoke to the Rotary Club Tuesday concerning boys' work. The subject of his talk was "Great Expectations." He was introduced by Levi Cole, chairman of the day's program committee and director of Boy Scout work in Canyon.

"Inspiration comes from great expectations," said Dr. Fronabarger. "The world progresses because the family is engaged in expectations." Everyone needs to know what to expect of himself, both mentally and physically, as much as he needs to know what to hope for in others, he pointed out.

"It is not reasonable to expect the boys of tomorrow to be much better, if any, than the men of today," Dr. Fronabarger added. He suggested that each parent in the club should try to know six boys in the community well enough to call them by their first names, and should try, in addition to become acquainted with the abilities of these boys, and with their home lives. In this way he will know better what to expect of the individual boy, and will avoid hoping for too much or too little, each of which would be disasterous to the boy.

The members of the Rotary Club will entertin the Anns with a picnic September 19, beginning at 5 p. m.

The picnic will be held near town. Committees have been appointed to prepare the food.

F. E. Savage had chage of the group singing, and Mrs. Charlotte Ingham Word served as pianist.

Guests of the club were: Dr. Ford Fronabarger, Joe Hill, Jr., Miss Emil Brewer, and Vivian Knighton of Birmingham, Ala.

Gonzales Will Fire Cannon To Start Centennial

Dallas, Sept. 2.—The old brass cannon of Gonzales, which fired the first shot of the Texas Revolution a hundred years ago, will roar defiance again October 2 to usher in the celebration of the Texas Centennial.

The state-wide observance of the one-hundredth anniversary of Texas Independence will consist of a number of celebrations at historic shrines of the state, commencing at Gonzales, and climaxed by the $15,000,000 Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas from June to November, 1936.

Because Texans first took up arms at Gonzales in defense of their liberty, this charming little South Texas town is known as the "Lexington of the Lone Star State."

When war appeared imminent between Texas and Mexico in 1835, the Mexican government demanded that the citizens of Gonzales surrender a six pounder brass cannon which had been given to them for defense against the Indians. The cannon was practically worthless having been spiked and the spike bored out, leaving a touch hole as big as a silver dollar. The demand for the gun was merely an excuse to start hostilities.

Mexican dragoons attempted to capture the gun and the town. Texans from far and wide had rallied in Gonzales and hoisted the first flag of the Texas Revolution, a crude white banner inscribed "Come and take it." The old cannon was loaded to the muzzle with pot legs and scrap iron and turned loose on the foe. The Texans charged and the Mexicans fled leaving their dead and wounded behind them. Not a single Texan was harmed. Five months later Texas declared her independence.

These stirring scenes will be reenacted at Gonzales, October 2, in a celebration which will last a whole week. The battle will be refought with soldiers of the national guard representing the Texas and Mexican armies.

San Antonio, Houston, Nacogdoches and Huntsville all plan similar historical observances preparatory to the opening of the Texas Centennial Exposition at Dallas, June 6.

THE EAGLE'S TALE

Hi! Everybody!

Boy, it shore has been a scorcher this summer, and I shore was glad to see the rain. I guest it wouldn't done it if Mr. Carruth hadn't been trying to get back from Europe. I shore wish I could of gone with him, but I decided to work this summer and take my vacation with you kids.

Well, kids, I shore was glad to hear that you all was getting herded back in that old high school again. I got a letter Friday morning saying that Mr. Pope and Mr. Carruth was branding the herd with red hot subjects, so I come to see the excitement, and by the time I got there Coach Jones had branded out a bunch of them rugged football players, and turned them out on the field to let them try out their wings and fly over the district players without even being shot at.

I heard somebody say that Mrs. Foster was rounding up a bunch of the best looking gals to make a pep squad out of, and from what I can see she has got some pretty ones to pick from. Even a crowd of them boys were going back from school Monday morning to oil their hair and shine their shoes.

Talking about them old Canyon crooners makes me wonder who will be cupid's best this year. Owen and Marie were in nineteen and thrity-three, and Ed and Arnita took the prize last year, but it don't make much difference this year, just so it ain't one of our best football players, cause Coach Jones says they ought to be in bed early every night.

Well, I ain't going to miss a single football game, and the first one they have I'm going to hunt all you kids up and make you yell your tonsils out for Canyon.

PLAN YOUR TIME

"Our success depends upon how we use our time, and its by-product—the odd moment."

So reads the poster placed on the Messages of Merit board at the entrance of Superintendent I. B. Carruth's office. A truer statement has never been said. Everyone should be planning his time. Only in this way will he be able to enter fully into all the activities and derive all benefits from this school term. Time never stops for the procrastinator to catch up. Watch your step or catch yourself lagging behind the crowd.

Pope and Fronabarger Will Serve on State Committee

The State Department of Education of Texas appointed Mr. John B. Pope, principal of the Canyon High School, on the Curriculum Production Committee in the Field of Commerce. Miss Elva Fronabarger, principal of the grade school, was appointed in the Field of Languages and Arts.

Miss Fronabarger attended the first meeting of this committee June 1-3. Plans were discussed for the next meeting, which is to be the last of September. She is to assist in working out the course of study in Language, Spelling and Writing.

Mr. Pope has been unable to attend the meeting of his committee at Austin this summer as he has been teaching in W. T. S. T. C.

The objectives of the committee on which Mr. Pope is serving are to give such training as to enable students in selecting and preparing for suitable life careers, to stimulate higher ideals in personal and group relationships and to discover aptitudes, develop attitudes, and fix valuable skills necessary for personal and professional efficiency.

Mr. Pope is the supervisor of districts one, two and three. He will serve on the committee for selecting the text books for bookkeeping and arithmetic, and secretarial training.

Milton Kiker Builds New Improvements For Public Schools

Mr. Milton Kiker spent the summer making general improvements about the high school buildings.

Among the improvements are the newly-built student assistant counter in the principal's office, 16 new tables in room 30, and the door between room 30 and 28.

Mr. Kiker built a magazine rack in Miss Elva Fronabarger's room, and the superintendent's offices.

The hall floors, boys' shower room, and the principal's and superintendent's offices were painted.

New library tables for the grade school were made.

The school has bought soap containers for the rest rooms, and 18 new chairs for the bookkeeping room.

Enrollment Shows 15 New Students To Date In H. S.

Appropriation Urged By Tired Ball Boy

In limbering up for the evening practice, Coach Jones casually suggests that the boys jog around the Brooks Farm over a city block distance from where they were "casually" standing. As Tom Tom Harris rounded their big farm, he suggested, "I hope that the boys will demand immediate appropriation for the moving of the Brooks farm three hundred yards closer to the ball field."

Ho-hum, wonder what next!

LET'S KEEP OUR EQUIPMENT NEW!

"Oh! Look at all the new equipment we have this year. New books, tables, chairs, the bar across Mr. Pope's outer office and the halls are painted," exclaimed Mary as she stepped inside the front hall Monday morning.

Jane, Mary's companion remarked, "Yes, and this morning I came to school in one of the two new busses. The janitors surely have kept the lawns green through the summer. These new improvements will stay new because Canyon High School students will take good care of them. The students won't scratch the desks or mar the books because they're glad to use the new things.

Freshmen Battle; Monday's Initiation

All freshmen of Canyon High School were gladly received Monday noon as they experienced their first day in high school.

An upper classman shouted (fresh meat) and before freshmen had time to make their get away the upper classmen had their belts off and folded, ready to run the small fellows through the line of boys which was a block long.

An estimate of a hundred boys participated in the initiation of the Frosh; although, the freshmen thought the line was a mile long and a (thousand) boys had engaged in the initiation.

Monday evening all the freshmen boys were rubbing their legs and thighs, wishing they were still attending grade school.

The girls of the upper classes followed suit, after the boys, and initiated the freshmen girls after borrowing all the boys' belts. Several boys ran through the girls' belt line to add to the excitement, and then the freshmen boys followed suit by running through the fem belt line.

It was a full hour of fun and entertainment for the upper classmen, both girls and boys.

There will be approximately forty-five girls who will buy purple uniforms, which will cost $6.50 apiece. Each member will pay $5.00 on her suit, while the school will pay the remaining $1.50. There will be about 12 freshmen girls, who will wear white turtle-neck sweaters and white skirts.

Coach Jones' lads are to meet the Lefors Pirates on Sept. 21 to match competitive strength. After four weeks of strenuous practice, the inexperienced gridsters should have the fundamentals pretty well under way in time for the first game.

With all the new equipment presented the athletic department, the boys should show the school, students, and all others how they appreciate the new uniforms presented them.

Two new courses have been added in the high school and four whole year subjects and three half-year subjects here-to-fore offered are not included in the curriculum this year.

Those added were bookkeeping, which is being taught by Mr. John B. Pope, and home economics III under Miss Fannie Sue Brasuel. Shorthand will possibly be added.

Faculty Starts Series Meetings Last Thursday

The faculty met last Thursday, Friday and Saturday in preparation for the coming school term. The board members entertained the faculty Thursday afternoon.

The first meeting was a general faculty meeting from 9:00 to 10:30. Teachers told of summer accomplishments, and Mr. Carruth gave a talk on the youth movement in Russia.

From 10:45 to 12:00 grade school teachers and high school teachers met in separate rooms and discussed their separate programs for the coming year and what they were going to try to accomplish.

From 1:30 to 2:30 another general faculty meeting was held during which Mr. Pope discussed the work of the curriculum movement in production. At 2:45 each teacher went to his room and put it in order for enrollment.

At 5 o'clock the board members, faculty members, and their families met in the high school gymnasium where they were served ice cream and cake by the board members. Immediately following this they all went to Amarillo in the new school busses to the concert given by the United States Marine Band. Friday the grade school teachers checked books. The high school teachers enrolled students both Friday and Saturday.

The Eagles will play their first game at home with the Lefors Pirates, and we can state without contradiction that they have one of the most outstanding teams in Conference B competition. The game is set for Saturday night, Sept. 21 at 8 o'clock.

The entire public is invited to attend and popular prices will prevail, adults 35 cents, and children under 12 will be admitted for 25 cents.

Freshman Girls Welcomed to High School With Tea

A tea, welcoming the freshman girls into High School, was given by the sophomore, junior, and senior girls Wednesday afternoon in the home economics room at 3:30 o'clock.

Mary Collins, Evelyn Cluck, Jean Slack, Carolyn Mayfield, Kate Eileen Donnell, and Billy Louise Greenfield, from the junior class, sang three gypsy songs: "Gypsy Love Song," "Play to Me Gypsy," and "In a Gypsy Tea Room."

The room was attractively arranged with marigold, zinnias, and shasta daisies. Refreshments were sandwiches, cookies and tea.

A 36-piece set of Rose Point semi-porcelain dishes was bought, also eight iced tea glasses, a serving fork and knife to go with a set of silverware, a flower bowl, jelly dish, and celery dish.

Kitchen equipment was received to finish out the work-table supplies. A garbage pail for each desk was purchased. The tops of the work tables and supply table were painted.

CANYON HI ENROLLMENT LOWER THAN LAST YEAR

Of this number 15 are new students.

Importance of Care of Teeth Is Pointed Out

Austin.—About nine out of every ten persons in the United States have something wrong with their teeth. At least eight of each ten have caries, or dental decay. A long list of other maladies, including the famous "pyorrhea," is to be discovered in even casual examination of the teeth in any community.

Why do so many people suffer the misery of bad teeth? Dental research in recent years has revealed that the trouble is the diet and other health habits of civilized folks, and not civilization itself. We may be both civilized and have good teeth.

The teeth are living organs and must be nourished, like any other part of the body. They are composed principally of calcium, a mineral found in great abundance in milk. Hence the insistence of dental scientists on the use of greater amounts of milk in the diet.

It is also important to preserve the general bodily health, for dental decay often begins during periods of general ill health. Teeth of mothers are also particularly liable to decay during pregnancy, hence at this time particular attention should be paid to the diet, after consultation with a physician.

Another important time for teeth health is in infancy and early childhood. Children should have plenty of milk, should receive some Vitamin D food, and should be permitted to play in the sunlight as often as possible.

For dental decay is not a simple disease; it has many causes, and its treatment does not depend on the dentist alone, but on every person who wants to improve the health of his teeth.

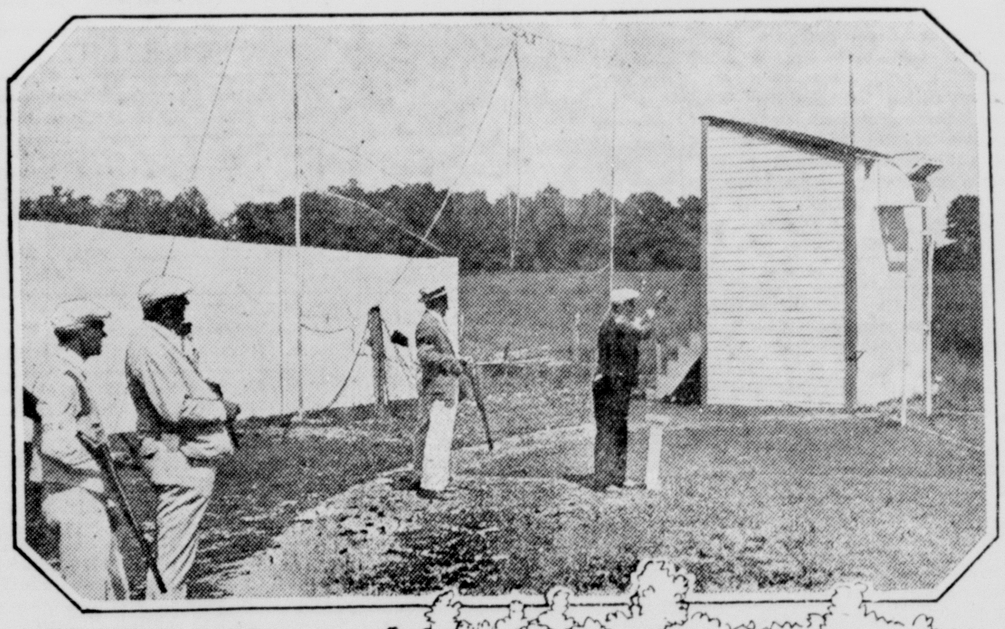
With More Than 100,000 Followers Right Now and Gaining More All Along, Skeet, New Form of Trapshooting, Is Sweeping the Country



BY PHILIP MARTIN

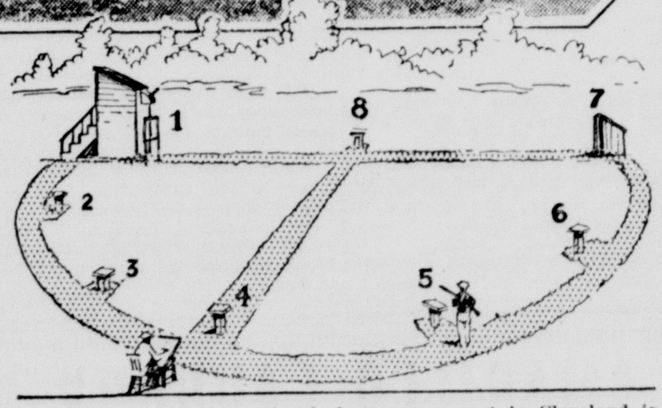
A NEW sport—yet one that's not new at all—is taking the country by storm. It's skeet—a pepped-up form of trapshooting, designed to improve the marksman's eye and keep his trigger finger in shape during closed seasons.

Skeet differs from trapshooting in that the skeet shooter fires from eight different positions at pitch pigeons which are shot from two trap houses, one high and one low, whereas the trapshooter fires from only one spot at clay pigeons shot from but one trap house.

When skeet was originated by a group of Massachusetts hunters, a 40-foot circle was painted on the ground and the shooters walked around the circle and fired at the pigeons from various positions. Then, it happened that a farmer built some henhouses near the field, which prevented the sportsmen from shooting in that direction. So they cut off half the circle and found they got the same results.

To name this new game, a contest was run in a sports magazine, with a prize of $1000 for the best name. A woman copped the prize with the name "skeet"—an old Scandinavian word meaning 'shoot."

Skeet, a fascinating year-round sport, has been gaining many new followers yearly. At present there are more than 1000 skeet clubs throughout the country, members of which number well over 100,000. Though of purely American origin, skeet has spread to many foreign countries which now send delegates to American tournaments.



A scene during the national skeet tournament in Cleveland is pictured above. Below is a sketched chart of a skeet range. In order, from the stations numbered about the semi-circular course, the marksman tries his luck at the targets thrown from the trap-houses. No. 8 is the last position.

The popularity of skeet arises from its similarity to actual hunting. In making the rounds of a skeet course, the marksman shoots twice from each of eight positions, once at a bird shot from the high house and once at a low bird. In this way he encounters almost every situation met in hunting duck, grouse, quail, pheasant, or snipe.

Pratt came out victorious over such outstanding shots as J. O. Bates of Dallas, left-handed southwest championship holder; the great eastern smallbore champion, Dr. R. G. Vance, Waban, Mass.; Jack W. Reavis, Cleveland, middle-western champ; Ollie Mitchell, Natick, Miss., who captained the All-America team in 1934; and five members of California's national championship team.

Pratt broke 99 birds out of 100 the first day of the contest, 97 out of 100 the second day, and 48 out of 50 the third day; a total of 244 out of 250 for the three-day contest.

Season Opens For W. T. Buff Squad

Preparations Made To Begin Hardest Schedule

By Joe Smith

The football season at West Texas State Teachers College is off midst a blare of bugles as Coaches Al Baggett and Bob Cox crack their whips over the heads of thirty-five varsity candidates.

The "thud" of leather upon leather, and the shrill bark of the coaches is heard in every corner of Buffalo stadium as hurried preparations are made to inaugurate one of the hardest schedules in the history of the school.

The W. T. roster is blessed with eleven of the last year's lettermen, and a host of fine sophomore material that is a boastful addition to any school.

The lettermen that are returning are as follows: Stina Cain, of Wheeler who guards the right wing for W. T. and does a nice job of pass receiving as well as playing a defensive game. Ezell Champion of Memphis will play a backfield position and bear most of the passing and punting burden, and he does them up in fine style. Ronald Davis, a letterman of several years back will make a spirited bid for a starting berth. He is a back, and his home is in Childress.

Jack Davis of Lakeview, a letterman at end will return to guard his position from up-and-coming sophomores. Leo Jackson of Floydada is the sole returning letterman at the center post. Jackson is big and rugged, and a fine blocker. Vernon Johnson of Childress, another backfield letterman will be battling for a starting position, and with his size and speed it is likely that he will enjoy a fine season.

John Lee, former Badger and Sandie player, will be ready to take another whirl at all opposition. He is a tackle and Amarillo is his home. Clinton Meek, another former Badger of days gone by will be ready on opening day. Meek is a tackle from Gageby.

Frank Van Noy of Amarillo will probably get the call at quarter. Frank is a veteran of many battles, and does a fine job of directing. R. D. Wheelock of Silverton, a letterman at tackle and center plans to be one of the starting eleven on Sept. 20.

Walker Writes Supplement For Texas Geography

School children of Texas will get their ideas of the geography of their state from a supplement written by Miss Darthula Walker, head of the geography department of the West Texas State Teachers College. Publishers of the book declare that Miss Walker's is the best state supplement they have ever seen.

Although they were under contract to furnish a Texas section of only thirty pages, they found the information so interesting and valuable that they extended it to fifty pages rather than sacrifice the material which was so carefully gathered and arranged by Miss Walker last spring.

Miss Walker took a leave of absence from her teaching to prepare the supplement. She spent six weeks in Austin more recently, assisting in the formulation of the social science curriculum for the public schools of the state.

Buffaloes Started Training Monday

Eleven lettermen, one man for each position on the Buffalo Football squad, reported for practice Monday, Sept. 10, under the direction of Coach Al Baggett and Assistant Coach Bob Cox. The eleven lettermen, shown above, will probably not be the starting line-up, however, as 20 sophomores and 12 juniors are also candidates for the 1935 squad. Four seniors who are playing their last year are Capt. John Rankin of Miami; Frank Van Noy, Amarillo; R. D. Wheelock, Silverton, and Leo Jackson, Floydada.

Reports Indicate Texas Decreasing In Unemployment

Austin, Sept. 11.—Reports from 1,475 Texas establishments gave a total of 70,644 employees during the week ended August 17, an increase of eight-tenths of one per cent over the corresponding period of the previous month and a decline of two-tenths of one per cent from that of the like week in August, 1934, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Payrolls during the week of the current month totaled $1,608,000, up 1.2 per cent from the previous month and 6.3 per cent over a year ago.

Cities showing an increase in the number of employees in comparison with August last year are: Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Denison, Galveston, Laredo, Port Arthur, San Angelo, San Antonio, and Wichita Falls.

Industries showing an increase are: Founderies, machine shops, furniture manufacturing, hotels, ice factories, laundries and dry cleaning, men's clothing manufacturing, millwork, newspaper publishing, paper box manufacturing, petroleum refining, retail stores, structural iron works, and wholesale stores.

Corrective Speech Courses To Be Offered at W. T.

This course is designed to prepare speech majors to correct speech defects in children and adults, and the class last year demonstrated that such defects as stammering, stuttering, and inability to articulate distinctly could be remedied. A child, seven years old, who had never talked was taught to speak.

Miss Mary Morgan Brown, head of the department has assisted in many speech clinics, and Leon Lassers, who is new in the department this year, comes direct from a study of corrective speech in Chicago. Dr. R. A. Neblett cooperates with the speech department in its efforts to correct speech defects.

who will appear in person at each performance, will be at the fair beginning Monday, Sept. 16.

Beckman & Gerety, owners and operators of the largest midway shows in the United States, will come direct from Detroit and probably will open a day before the fair.

O. L. "Ted" Taylor, secretary-manager, declared every department of the exposition would be complete, revealing the best in agriculture, industry and art in the Southwest.

"Livestock exhibits specially will be unsurpassed anywhere," he said. "Visitors to the Tri-State Fair will see the same noted herds entered at the American Royal in Kansas City or at the International in Chicago."

Many of these herds are sent to the exposition by foremost breeders from distant states.

"The Tri-State Fair is too large to be seen in one day, particularly if you want to view all of the exhibits and attend some of the many attractions," says Mr. Hawk.

Many visiting delegations, accompanied by bands, will come to Amarillo during exposition week. These delegations will come by special train and motor caravans.
